JAYA JAVERI

ARTIST PROFILE

Jaya Javeri is a well known artist originally from Mumbai but now in Bangalore. She has had 19 solo shows so far in Mumbai, Bangalore, Chennai, Hyderabad, Kolkata, Ahmedabad and in New York and has participated in group shows around the world.

She is an MBA from the Jamnalal Bajaj Institute Of Management Studies , Mumbai who worked in the corporate world before giving it up to pursue her passion...art.

Her paintings are in the collection of individual collectors all over the world as well as with corporate houses. She paints themes which have perspective, depth, a feeling of walking into the canvas.

Her paintings are highly textured by the palette knife which she uses to highlight different surfaces. Light and shadows infuse life into her works as well as heighten the feeling of perspective in her canvases.

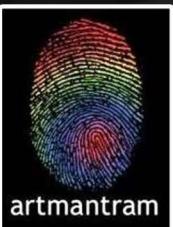

The colours that she uses are vibrant and happy.... she feels each of her paintings should bring joy, positivity and a sense of tranquility.

VENITA LALL VOHRA

ARTIST PROFILE

Venita Lall grew up on a tea plantation in the idyllic hills of Darjeeling, India. She finds beauty in simple things in life and is mesmerized by nature's exquisiteness.

Venita's works are a riot of colour marked with intricate details that tell a story, conjuring up vivid images of a narrative, allowing respective interpretations and unraveling of deep connections of her inner subliminal reflections within the artist. She communicates her deep affirmative visual expression through pictorial depiction with the viewer to engage in a dialogue. She enjoys experimenting, playing with colour and painting on canvas over the years, she has found that acrylic on canvas is definitely her medium. She enjoys layering her canvas using acrylics with dry brush, texturing, pouring, collage and sponge painting. She is deeply inspired by nature, by the environment and the pertinent questions that arise about our environs and surroundings.

Painting, for Venita, is not limited by a medium and she enjoys merging styles and media like ink, water, acrylic, oil, pen, pencil or poster paint, much like the versatility of life itself. She enjoys layering and texturing her canvas with different techniques.

Venita Lall is a gold and silver medalist with a strong background in Design, who has showcased her work in solo and group exhibitions. Venita has been featured widely by a range of publications and magazines, but notably by 'Inside Outside' magazine and 'Indian Architect and Builder', her design and storytelling panache opening windows into the life of a creative talent that is unique in its elegance and freshness.

Mridul Chandra

ARTIST PROFILE

Studied from 'Sir JJ school of Art 'Mumbai.

Hailing from Kolkata, now based in Bangalore.

Spanning two decades of a creative journey, she has held solo shows in 'Jahangir Art Galley' Mumbai. Duo show in the 'Habitat Art Gallery' Delhi. several Gallery group shows in Bangalore. Participated in an all-Women's Artist Camp in Gulbarga organised by Karnataka Kala Academy.

Her paintings are about the marvels of being in an 'artistic endeavour". Nature and travel have held a deep interest. Expressing what is in front of her in a personalised semi abstract expressionist manner, her eye searches for a way to depict the real in an unreal suggestion, leaving her in a state of being in the 'here-and-now'.

Her works are with collectors in India and abroad.

Besides studio work, conducting water colour short sessions for the public to generate interest and well-being through painting .

KALAMKARI FROM DWARAKA

ARTIST PROFILE

These panels are hand painted on cotton fabric by the DWARAKA artists of Sri Kalahasti, Andhra Pradesh

Hand painted Kalamkari is one among the multitude of art forms in India. Dating back to the Vijayanagar Empire, that once ruled the SriKalahasti region, hand painted Kalamkari done on textiles is a laborious process. The cloth is first dipped in a mix of milk and myrobalan powder, followed by a hand sketch done on it using burnt twigs as charcoal, which are written upon by the “kalam”, or a twig with thread around it.

The kalam is dipped in a liquid mix made using palm jaggery and iron filings fermented together for a month or so. Traditional motifs such as peacocks and flowers, or at times mythological stories are then written on the cloth that is then coloured using vegetable dyes in earthy hues of pomegranate reds, mango yellows, earthen rusts, leafy greens, raven wing blacks and Lord Krishna blues—the artisans fill the once lifeless cloth canvases with vibrant colours. The cloth is boiled, and dried under the sun on sand (originally it was upon the banks of the Swarnamukhi river that was the lifeline of this region).

Impoverished and ostracized women from rural communities in and around Srikalahasti were mobilised for collective change. In the year 1998, moved by the artists' despondency and mesmerized by the art, Sri Dwaraknath Reddy, founder of DWARAKA, and his daughter Anita, a social activist of 40 year experience launched the DWARAKA movement to breathe a new life into the dying tradition of hand painted Kalamkari.

Dwaraka's efforts have now borne fruit. Dwaraka has impacted hundreds of women artists, directly or indirectly, and their families who now have means for a sustainable livelihood, and artists who were on the verge of closing down and moving to mainstream jobs have now found a new lease of life through the revival of hand painted kalamkari art.
